Florence, October 25. The Great Duke having fixed on the 21ſt Inſtant for performing the Ceremony of inveſting Sir Horace Mann, Bart. with the Enſigns of the moſt Honourable Order of the Bath, Orders were iſſued from the Court to all the Great Officers of State, to the Chamberlains, who were near One Hundred in Number, and to all the Nobility who have the Privilege of the Antichamber, to be there at half an Hour after Eleven in the Morning, and half after Twelve was the Time appointed for Sir Horace Mann to be there. In Conſequence of which, many Engliſh Noblemen and Gentlemen aſſembled at his Houſe in the Morning, and proceeded with him to the Great Duke's Palace. He went in a Coach and Six with the Duke of Devonſhire, the Earl Cowper, and His Britannick Majeſty's Conſul (who were to be Witneſſes) followed by eighteen Coaches, with the Reſt of the Engliſh Noblemen and Gentlemen; and, after a ſhort Stay in the Antichamber, the Ceremony was performed in the following Manner:

The Great Duke, being in his Chamber of Audience, was ſeated under a Canopy of State, with his Hat on his Head, and attended by Count Roſenberg, his Grand Maitre, Firſt Miniſter, and Knight of the Golden Fleece; Count Thurn, the Captain of the Noble Guard; the Duke Salviati, Great Chamberlain; Prince Corſini, Grand Prior of the Order of Malta, and Maſter of the Horſe; and the Marquiſs Riccardi, Maſter of the Great Wardrobe, Grand Croix of the Order of St. Stephen, and appointed Marſhal of the Court on this Occaſion. The Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber in Waiting then introduced the Duke of Devonſhire, the Earl Cowper, and his Britannick Majeſty's Conſul, as Witneſſes. Sir Horace Mann was then introduced, being ſupported on the Right Hand by the Marquiſs Capponi, Major General, Commander in Chief of the Troops in Florence, Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber, and Grand Croix of the Order of Stephen; and on the Left by Count de la Tour, Major General, Lieutenant of the Noble Guard, and Knight of St. Stephen. The firſt Page, called the Page of Honour, preceded, carrying on a Gold Salver the Enſigns of the Order of the Bath, the Book of Statutes, and the Letters Patent of Creation of a Knight of the ſaid Order.

Sir Horace Mann, at his Entrance into the Room, as well as the two Knights on the Right and Left, made a low Reverence, a ſecond in the Middle of the Room, and a third on approaching the Great Duke. Monſieur Sauboin, firſt private Secretary, who had previouſly been furniſhed with a Tranſlation of the Patent, read the ſame aloud by the Great Duke's Order; which being finiſhed, Sir Horace Mann kneeled down before the Great Duke, and the Marquis Riccardi, Marſhal of the Court, delivered to His Royal Highneſs a drawn Sword of State, with which he touched Sir Horace Mann's Left Shoulder three Times, ſaying to him, "I create "you a Knight in the Name of my Brother "the King of Great Britain." The Page of Honour then preſented to His Royal Highneſs the Book of the Statutes of the Order of the Bath, which he delivered to Sir Horace Mann, who, on receiving it, made the following Declaration: "I, Horace Mann, Baronet, do promiſe and "ſwear to the King of Great Britain, my "Maſter, to obſerve the Statutes of the moſt "Honourable Order of the Bath, in every "Point." Whereupon the ſame Page preſented to the Great Duke the Ribbon, with the Inſignia of the Order, which his Royal Highneſs put over the Knight's Right Shoulder, and attached the Star to his Breaſt, delivering to him the original Patent of Creation. He then aroſe; and in a ſhort reſpectful Speech thanked his Royal Highneſs for the great Honour he had done him; then returning into the Antichamber, he ſigned the Oath in due Form, in the Preſence of the abovementioned Witneſſes, who alſo ſigned their Names.

The Great Dutcheſs, with the young Prince and Princeſs, ſtood behind a Curtain to ſee the Ceremony.

Sir Horace Mann then returned Home, all the Engliſh Gentlemen accompanying him, in the ſame Manner as he went to Court; and they, together with all the Great Officers, and thoſe who aſſiſted at the Ceremony, did him the Honour to dine with him that Day. The next Evening Sir Horace Mann gave a publick Ball to the Nobility of both Sexes; and for ſeveral Days after a Variety of Entertainments were given on this Occaſion by the Great Duke and the Officers of his Court, and by the Engliſh Nobility and Gentlemen. Upon the Whole, no Ceremony of this Kind was ever performed with more Splendor and Dignity than were ſhewn on this Occaſion.
